

Amazon Sales Analysis

Prepared by : Salma Khaled

Product Categories, Discounts & Customer Insights

Category Performance

Identifying top-performing product segments driving revenue growth

Discount Strategy

Analysing pricing patterns and promotional impact on sales

Customer Satisfaction

Understanding rating trends shaping purchasing decisions

Total Discounts by Category

- Discounts are heavily concentrated in Electronics, which might suggest high competition or clearance strategies.
- Categories with fewer discounts might not be price-sensitive or could already have steady demand.

Number of Items per Category

- More items = greater choice for customers, but also tougher competition within categories.
- Underrepresented categories could represent missed market opportunities.

Distribution of Ratings

- Customers are overall happy, but not overly delighted.
- Consistent mid-to-high ratings suggest reliability but room to improve customer experience.

Top 5 Subcategories by Rating Count

- Customers engage most actively in accessories and appliances categories.
- Subcategories like Mobiles still have high engagement despite relatively fewer items compared to Electronics.

Correlation Heatmap

- Customers don't perceive discounts as a major factor in product satisfaction.
- Ratings are more likely driven by product quality, delivery, and service than by price cuts.

Discount % vs Ratings

- Customers don't rate products higher just because of discounts.
- High discounts may attract purchases, but long-term brand loyalty depends on product experience.

Actual vs Discounted Price

- Discounts are proportional to actual price → expensive products attract larger absolute discounts.

Top 10 Products by Discount Amount

- High-value items require deep discounts to stay competitive.
- However, over-discounting premium items can erode brand value.

Top 10 Products by Actual Price

- Premium items are a big revenue driver but heavily dependent on discounting.

Distribution of Discounts %

- The platform is positioned as a discount-heavy marketplace.
- Customers are trained to expect ~50% discounts on average.

Key Recommendations for Amazon Sales Growth

- Optimize Discounts
- Expand Underrepresented Categories
- Leverage Customer Experience

Thank You